ON THIS DAY

Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 23, the 328th day of 1988. There are 38 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1963, the body of President John F.
Kennedy, who was felled the day before by an assassin's bullets, lay in repose in a closed, flag-draped coffin in the East Room of the White House. The new president, Lyndon B. Johnson, proclaimed Nov. 25, the day of Kennedy's funeral, a day of national mourning.

On this date:

In 1765, Frederick County, Md., repudiated the British Stamp Act.

■ In 1804, the 14th president of the United States, Franklin Pierce, was born in Hillsboro, N.H.

In 1887, one of the silver screen's most enduring horror stars, Boris Karloff, was born William Henry Pratt in the London suburb of Dulwich.

In 1903, singer Enrico Caruso made his U.S. debut at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, appearing in "Rigoletto."

In 1971, the People's Republic of China was seated in the U.N. Security Council.

Today's birthdays: Broadway composer Jerry Bock is 60. Former Labor Secretary William E. Brock is 58. Actress Susan Anspach is 49.

Thought for today: "If . . . history . . . teaches us anything, it is that man, in his quest for knowledge and progress, is determined and cannot be deterred."

- President John F. Kennedy (1917-1963)

OUOTABLE

"I remember them presenting the flag to Mrs. Kennedy. I remember the planes flying overhead. The cannon salute and the soldier playing taps."

- Chas Ricci

who was 10 years old when he went with his father to the funeral of President John F. Kennedy at Arlington National Cemetery.
